Massachusetts General Hospital

The MGH Urologic Oncology Service has the highest volume of prostate cancer cases in New England. Radical prostatectomies in high volumes are performed by both the open and laparoscopic techniques in about equal numbers. In view of the high volume of cases, clinical pathways and teaching materials specific to radical prostatectomy have been in place for several years to assure that patients who have this procedure receive the highest quality of care. Moreover, because of this volume our nurses and support staff are very familiar with the care of these patients, which, in turn, enhances the patient experience and improves quality.
